BRITONS FORM HOSPITALITY SCHOOL DAYS MECTALIFO NO WEST STREET BY DWIG

A MERICAN methods take hold but slowly in Europe. The However, since the army spread knowledge of American ways over their, more interest has been taken in attudying American methods with a view to using what is deemed suited to European conditions. The latest demanstration is found in the organising of a hospitality league or national hospitality committee in England to care for the hundreds of themsands of American visitors expected this summer and fall.

THE EXHIBIT of the work of public schools, given in Liberty hall this week, was a revelation to those who fail to keep in close touch with educational work in El Paso.

London has followed the example of Paris and Brusseln in this. The British movement was initiated under the supplies of the Royal Colonial institute of London followed by a meeting of the house of commons when representatives of the home and foreign press attended, also deputations from the American chamber of commerce in England, the English Speaking union, the Y. M. C. A., the Anglo-American society, the Middle Clauses union, the American Express company, the British Empire union, and other infinitial bedies.

The idea of hospitality to Americans as a British na-tional tribute to the United States was launched by an American who is now the editor of the London Express. As a result of the work accomplished, no American visitor to England this year need fear lack of living accommoda-

American who is now the editor of the London Express. As a result of the work accomplished, no American visitor to England this year need fear lack of living accommodations.

Householders responded to the appeal to register most generatingly, quite in an American faillion, the majority being people in comfortable circumstances who have never yet shared "the Englishman's castle" with a visitor for pay. Their rule is bruken for American entering only. Trips to Shakupere's country, to the cathedral cities, to the ancestral home of the Washington family, and many other places of interest to American entering and Mexico cone of the cepters of the world's civilization without in any way interfering with the rights of Mexican and without dabbing in Mexicon government.

One of the first steps toward bringing America and Mexico closer in a business way is to arrange a conference by the hospitality committee at cost price. As to rates are living in England they are reported as being 'below the average in the United States with the exception of butter and sugar."

Rutopean countries have never shown the faculty for city-canned the arrange and common benefit. More things are laft to government to attend to than in the practice with Americans, and what the government does not handle is left undone or is attended to through private and unorganized effort.

The idea of citizens getting tegether to promote common interests contride the field of politics is a new one to Europeans, and it will take time to filter in. But when

THE EXHIBIT of the work of public schools, given in I diberty hall this week, was a revelation to those who fall to keep in close touch with educational work in El Paso. It revealed strikingly the progress in instruction since the days when it was considered that the teaching of the three "Ro!" was the only mission of the schools.

Manual training, demestic science, art, music, and sports are making the schools an attractive place instead of the thing to be dreaded by many upths, as was the case in former years. That pupils are entering whole heartedly into the spirit of the new school is demonstrated by the anuples of their handkruft shown this week at Liberty hall. And all this without neglecting the foundation studies.

It sounds like an El Paso chamber of commerce mans meeting.

It is shown, too, that a broadened view on the part of the club for American efficars in London during the war, was elected president of an organization which has registered not only all hold and bounding house accommodation in London and the provinces, but sens of thousands of rooms in private houses where until now no accommedation has been available.

The Dismal Day -:-

By WALT MASON.

THE day is dark and chilly, and norty showers descend; the winds are sad and silly, their wailing has no end. The men have quir their horing until the weather's dry; the women drop their swing, and gaze outdoors and sigh. On such a Lay a fellow is willing to believe that all the world is yellow, this lie designed to peave. The cheerful words of Browning that all the world is well, can't stop his heavy frowning, or soothe him for a spell. He feels that sil the sages and bards who sing of hope can never earn their wages by springing sunshine dape. The weary winds are blowing, it is a beautly day; no cherrint cows are crowing, no bhit moothe rounters neigh. But all the outdoor critters are wet and cold and blue no wren or robin twitters and makes a howdy-du. But hold, the dutte are p. your, the be ducks and their wive! The rain-By WALT MASON. do.
